

California now numbers the exits of its freeways according to the nearest mile marker. This makes possible accurate judging of distances on these maps where scale has been intentionally distorted to increase detail near Frank Lloyd Wright sites.

Scale and proportion on all these maps has been distorted in order to provide maximum useful graphic information. Here, the area between El Camino Real is vastly expanded to show detail around S.331. There is a 13 mile gap between Hillsborough and Atherton, but only 3 miles between Atherton and Stanford.